DISTRICT BOUNDS

The Results of the Original Research of Mr. Marcus Baker.

COLUMBIA HISTORICAL SOCIETY MEETING

Stones Set Up on the District Line a Century Ago.

MEMORY OF L'ENFANT

brought out last night at the meeting of the Columbia Historical Society at the residence of the president, Dr. J. M. Toner, 1445 Massachusetts avenue. This was the fourth meeting of this newly-organized society, and the first held since the summer vacation. A number of the members have not yet returned to the city, and the attendance was, therefore, not large. In addition to the members there were quite a number who had accepted invitations to be present. The subject presented for the consideration of the society was "The Boundary of the District of Columbia," and Mr. Marcus Baker read a highly-interesting and instructive paper. The topic was not a new one to Mr. Baker, for last year he treated a kindred theme in a paper which he read before the National Geographic Society on the surveys of the District, which will be published in the proceedings of that body. The paper read by Mr. Baker last evening contained the important results of some original research which has occupied his spare moments during the past summer. As there is no official record of the stones which are set up more than 100 years ago to mark the boundaries of the then ten miles square, known as the District of Columbia, Mr. Baker determined to ascertain whether these stones were still in existence and their condition. From an examination previously made of one or two of the stones which marks each mile on the four lines, he learned that they contained the record of the variation of the compass. From recent surveys he found that the modern reading of the compass differed from that of the compass differed from that of the record contained on these stones, and the extent of this variation, he said, was a matter of scientific interest. Condition of the Stones. He gave a short but interesting account of the instructions issued by Gen. Washingten for surveying the bounds of the Disrtict, and said that they showed the practical knowledge which the first President posessed of the science of surveying. Each of the four lines, it was specified, should be ten miles long, but Washington added that they should be continued to the point of meeting. The lines were not exactly the length provided. The eastern line, for example, was some 200 feet longer than the stipulated length, and there was also a small excess in one of the other lines. The bounds of the District, therefore, instead of bounds of the District, therefore, instead of being square formed an oblong. Mr. Baker's personal tour of observation of these stones began with the first stone which was set up at Hunting Creek, below Alexandria. As this stone is now in the foundation of the lighthouse at that point, it could not be examined. The next stone, going north, is in the back yard of Dr. Babbitt's house, in Alexandria. These stones he said, were Alexandria. These stones, he said, were two feet high by one foot square, and were made of the sandstone which was used for the construction of the Capitol and the President's house and the early department

At this point Mr. Baker paused to call attention to the perishable character of such records. Although they had been graven on stone, yet a little more than one hundred years after the record had been made it was practically obliterated. He said that the stones in Virginia were in a very bad condition, having been used apparently dur-ing the war as targets for rifle practice. Those in Maryland wars in ose in Maryland were in better condition but even with the best of them it was diffi-cult to decipher the inscriptions.

A Valuable Record His account of his search for these stones and the difficulties in locating them afforded a good deal of amusement. While it was possible, with the aid of a map to get within the near vicinity of the stones, yet the exact spot where they stood could only be learned by patient tramping through woods and fields and inquiry from those who lived in the locality. The first stone on the Mary-land side, he said, is located near the Conduit road and its situation is marked by its near proximity to the ruins of an old cock-pit, which was frequented by those fond of pit, which was frequented by those fond of this brutal sport, who were obliged to go outside of the District in order to gratify outside of the District in order to gratify their tastes in this particular. A similar cockpit was found near a boundary stone which is on the Naylor road. Mr. Baker copied carefully the inscriptions as they actually exist today on each of the stones, so that his researches furnish a record of their condition 102 years after they were set up. He said that the dates cut in the stones showed that those in Virginia were set up in the year 1791, and that those in Mary-land were placed in position in the year

Mr. Baker's paper aroused the greatest interest among the members of the society, and at its close a number of questions were asked, which elicited additional facts. Mr. M. W. Galt inquired about the stone which marked the center of the District, a location which is near the Washington monument. Mr. Baker had also investigated that matter and described the surveys made under di-rection of President Jefferson for determining the meridian of Washington and the setting up of a stone near the Washington monument and also one on 16th street, near the site of the old standpipe. He had learned from one of the local histories that the stone which was supposed to mark the Dis-trict center was at the corner of 14th and R streets, and was used as a carriage step. He went there, but did not find it, but sub-sequently learned that the supposed stone was at the reform school for boys, where it was used as a hitching post. He saw this stone, but found that the inscriptions had practically disappeared; but it was evident that it was once used to mark the meridian line, and was probably the one erected at the head of 16th street.

The Memory of L'Enfant. Mr. Baker had a number of early maps of the District, which were examined by the members. This naturally caused some reference to be made to Maj. L'Enfant, who designed the plan of the city, and to

Mr. Ellicott, who made the surveys. Dr. James W. Morgan, who has quite a collection of the original letters written to collection of the original letters written to and by Maj. L'Enfant, presented two which were written by Thomas Jefferson to Maj. L'Enfant in regard to the surveys. He also exhibited a rare old print of the original L'Enfant map.

Mr. John A. Kasson, the ex-minister to Germany, spoke of a conversation he had held with the late W. W. Corcoran in regard to exacting a fitting memorial to the gard to erecting a fitting memorial to the great French engineer in this city. He learned from Mr. Corcoran that Congress had sent to L'Enfant a check for 1400 in payment of his services, which the haughty Frenchman had returned, saying that his services were not worth more than that amount they were worth nothing. This check, Mr. Kasson said, had been returned to the United States treasury, where it still remained, and, with the accumulated in-terest, now amounted to a sum which would be ample to meet the expenses of erecting the proposed monument. While a member of Congress he had introduced a bill for this purpose, but soon after he had resigned his seat to accept a diplomatic position, and had therefore not been able to push the measure. It had remained for-gotten in the pigeon-hole of the committee room. He thought that the society would do well to take up this matter, as it would be a late, but deserved, honor to the memory of the creator of the plan of the capital city.

Some facts were presented in regard to the boundary stones of the city by Capt. John Stewart, C. E., who also spoke of the early maps of the city and the connection of L'Enfant and Ellicott with them. Mr. M. I. Weller suggested that a good work would be performed if the society would collect as far as possible in the orig-inals or in copies the letters of L'Enfant and Ellicott, which were now widely scat-At the close of the discussion the society adjourned.

MANY INDICTMENTS RETURNED. Exchange of Courtesies Between the Grand Jury and the Judge.

The grand jury for the June term of the court concluded their duties for the term by returning yesterday afternoon one of the largest batches of indictments in the history of the court. The grand jury made their report to Judge Cole, in Criminal Court No. 1, and Foreman Louis Heilbrun, on behalf of his associates, presented to the judge a magnificent bunch of roses as a slight token of their regard and in remembrance of the many courtesies which they had, explained Mr. Heilbrun, received from the court. Mr. Heilbrun also took occasion to express the admiration of himself and his associates for the manner in which justice was administered in the courts of the District. Judge Cole, in reply, explained that he accepted the flowers and the kind words of the grand jury on behalf of both Judge McComas and himself, for both had held official relations with them, and for District Attorney Birney as well. It was very gratifying, said Judge Cole, to be told by the citizens of the District, for the grand jury truly represented the citi-zens, that the courts of the District were entitled to such high commendation. It was equally gratifying to him to be able to return the compliment, and he dis-charged the grand jury with the thanks of he court for the very able manner in which they had performed their duties. The following is the list of the indictnents returned yesterday afternoon: Henry b. Havemeyer, John W. Macartney, John Searles, Elverton R. THE FALLS CHURCH RAILWAY. Officers Elected and an Extension of the Lines Considered.

The directors of the Falls Church and Poomac Electric Railway Company recently elected by the stockholders of that company, viz.: A. P. Eastman, N. W. Graham, S. S. Burdette, R. S. Lacy, O. E. Hine, M. E. Church, R. W. Moore and E. J. Northrup, met in this city Saturday and elected the following officers: Maj. O. E. Hine of Vienna, president; Gen. S. S. Burdette of Carlins Springs, vice president; Maj. R. S. Lacy of Ballston, secretary, and Dr. N. F. Graham of West End, treasurer. After an interchange of views, a committee was appointed to meet the president of the Mt. Vernon Railway Company and ascertain how soon a connection can be made with that company's extension at Arlington or Long Bridge, as, under their charter, the Falls Church and Potomac Company has the right to enter the city over their lines. This, it is believed, is a long step toward securing a direct connection from Falls Church to the Central market. It is also contemplated to build a spur from Arlington to Georgetown. All of the gentlemen contemplated with this enterprise are leave presented. rected with this enterprise are large prop-erty holders and residents of Alexandria and Fairfax counties.

District Troopers Have a Good Time. Troop A, District of Columbia National Guard, augmented by officers of the regular army and the National Guard, were in possession of the Hotel Belford last evening from 9 o'clock till 11 o'clock. The occasion was a reception tendered the members of the troop by the commissioned officers, Capt. H. S. Barbour, Lieut. J. T. Eiker and Lieut.

C. L. Beatty.

Oysters and liquids comprised the menu, and they were disposed of with surprising rapidity. The affair was a novelty and was highly enjoyed by all in attendance.

Solved the Base Ball Puzzle. A diamond ring offered by William J. Sullivan for the first correct solution of a base ball house puzzle was awarded last evening to Mr. J. P. Hodgkin, with Policeman J. M. McGrath and Mr. W. A. D. Cole ranking second and third, respectively. The judges of the contest were Capt. J. L. Mc-Elwain, chairman; E. J. Whitty and E. G. Kahlert.

DRINK OBESITY FRUIT SALT.

In a recent article published in the Boston Globe, Dr. Wm. H. Holmes, Massachusetts General Hospital, writes: I use Dr. Edison's Obesity Pills one day and the Obesity Salt the next, and obtain excellent results. I am losing a pound a day, almost twice as much as I did using the pills alone. The Fruit Salts are just what my system requires to reduce fat. I analyzed the salts, and found them to be the best material and like the formula on the bottle. Your remedies are all right. I hear of several physicians prescribing the Fruit Salt as a flesh reducer and a delightful hot weather beverage for old and young. It prevents fevers and cures summer complaints.

Surgeon John H. Lincoln, Cunard Line, writes:
"I can prescribe your Dr. Edison's Obesity Pills and Salt to all my friends who are too heavy, as I have reduced my weight 68 pounds in 23 weeks. The Fruit Salt is the best summer drink I ever used. Everybody uses your Fruit Salt."

MISS GOLET, NEWPORT R. I., WRITES:
My physician, Dr. Barstow, 5th avenue, prescribed your Obesity Pills and Obesity Fruit Sait for corpulcacy. I have lost nincteen pounds in twenty-four days on one bottle of pills and half a bottle of Fruit Sait. I do not suffer any more from the heat while using the sait. It is sweet and delicious, and lowers the temperature of the body. I see everybody using the Fruit Sait as a drink. I wish you had introduced it sooner.
